JXB Editorial Interns 2024

25 September 2023

Given the success of the first round, we have just announced a call for the second round of JXB Editorial Internships for 2024. The aim of these internships is to provide early career researchers with experience of scientific publishing from the editorial side, as an opportunity for career development as a researcher or with a view to a career in scientific publishing. We'd really appreciate it if you could help disseminate this call around your institute and network where appropriate.
